As an artist and educator, Adrian's goal is to plant the seeds of understanding and appreciation for the art form of dance. His residency programs engage students with hip-hop and take them on a journey, exploring other styles of dance and the roots and foundations of dance forms. Terminology from modern, ballet, and jazz dance styles is interwoven with each lesson and correlated to the hip-hop genre. His goal is simple – to engage and inspire by creating a knowledgeable dance audience using hip-hop as the entry point. Adrian teaches students from K-12 across all social and economic levels to successfully develop their dance skills and social characteristics such as self-esteem, responsibility, dedication, and respect. Culminating each residency, students demonstrate their newly-developed skills which include technical proficiency, inner strength, and self-esteem.
